TIME FOR TRAWLERS

AMONG the long-term plans for the fishing industry outlined by Mr. E.B. Teeddale in the recent budget debate is the development of a new type of ocean-going trawler. Following the restrictions imposed by the Chinese authorities and the consequent fall in landings last year, this is a project which must interest many. For modern trawlers mean that Hongkong will be able to use to a greater extent the "safe" international waters to ensure continuity of supplies should local or traditional waters again be denied us. The local fleet supplies all the fresh fish we consume. Additionally, this is the only staple food in which Hongkong is self-sufficient. And while we are trying to build up other kinds of food production, our great reliance on locally caught fish requires that we take every precaution to ensure that there is no serious interruption to or interference with this supply.

OUR OWN FLEET

WHAT Hongkong must win at is owning its own fleet of ocean-going trawlers. We cannot rely on Japanese vessels to fill this need. Mechanisation of our deep-sea junks will go part of the way to giving us the fleet that we may have to depend on increasingly in the years ahead. Even here there is a limit to the number which can be converted and it is one we are fast reaching.

There are difficulties in the way of starting a trawler fleet. The change-over from junk to this type of vessel involves a social revolution in the local fishing community. No longer can the family go to sea as crew, but local customs and expense should not deter government from building a modern fleet. In fact, Government should encourage local junk-masters to convert to trawlers by financially assisting them over the difficulties.

SCHOLARSHIPS

HERE is one way Government could order a large number of local yards financed from either its own funds or those of the Colonial Development Corporation. The right type of boat will have to be found for fishing in this area. The cost per boat may be as much as $500,000. Government could then provide "scholarships" for 12 junkmasters to convert to trawlers by means of a short course at the Technical College. The scholarship would also provide sufficient money to enable his family, formerly sea-going, to live on shore without earnings from fishing.

Following this training, which would include ocean navigation and the latest trawling methods, he could be left to recruit his own crew, and once he begins operations he could pay back Government the capital outlay for the trawler over a 10 or 20-year period, ownership passing to him after 75 per cent of the capital has been repaid. This way Hongkong would get the nucleus of a trawler fleet which it could gradually develop as junkmasters discovered the advantages of leaving the family ashore and going out to sea to fish in a modern ship with a fully trained crew.

JUDGE'S MOVE IN MURDER TRIAL

Objecting Juror Ordered To Stay In Court For Trial

A man who declined to serve in a jury in a murder case this morning because he objected to capital punishment was allowed to stand down, but ordered to remain in court throughout the trial.

At the Criminal Sessions, Mr Justice A. D. Scholes gave the potential juror two choices—to serve or to stay behind. The man chose the latter.

The case was that of four inmates of the Cape Collinson Boys Training Centre, who were charged with the murder of one of their camp leaders, So Shu-tai, on November 17 last year.

They are Yau Kin-wah, 20, Ng Tak-wai, 21, Chin Shu-kan, 20, and Choi To, 19.

Speaking last Monday, the trial was stopped when it was disclosed that a juror had been seen speaking with a prosecution witness.

The juror was then discharged and hearing was adjourned until Wednesday for a new one to be empanelled and for the case to start afresh.

On Wednesday, 14 persons called for selection for service objected on grounds of conscience, and were allowed to stand down.

The case was postponed until today for more people to be called up for selection.

After the seven-man jury had been empanelled this morning, the court usher was about to (Contd. on Back Page, Col. 4)

'HERTER WILL SUCCEED DULLES'

Washington, April 16. A high Republican official who declined to be identified for publication, said tonight: "Mr Christian Herter will be the next Secretary of State."

He said the President would announce the appointment in a few days.

The official, who knew of the medical check made on Mr Herter yesterday, said it showed that there was nothing in Mr Herter's physical condition which would prevent him from being appointed to succeed Mr Dulles.

Reports circulated in Washington tonight that the President had insisted on him first getting a medical check-up. Doctors saw him yesterday, according to unconfirmed reports.

Mr Herter is crippled by arthritis and moves about on lightweight metal crutches or in a wheelchair.

Meanwhile a Washington report said that Mr John Foster Dulles had a comfortable night at Walter Reed hospital and was undergoing another x-ray treatment for a suspected malignant tumour in the lower neck.—Reuters.

Tenzpur, April 17.

The Dalai Lama has told Mr Nehru how "the Lord Buddha saved me" when two Chinese artillery shells crashed into the Potala Palace in Lhasa without exploding.

Police launched a full-scale manhunt for the man. A man was later taken into custody.

Two revolvers were found on him.—U.P.I.

NASSER'S NEW JAB AT RUSSIA

NASSER Astonished at Russia's support of Iraq.

'Three Years Goodwill Lost In Three Weeks'

Cairo, April 16. "The enormous amount of goodwill accumulated in over three years of friendship between the Soviet Union and Egypt has been lost in less than three weeks," President Nasser said today.

The statement was given to the correspondent of the Indian review "Blitz."

Nasser declared: "Since the Soviet Premier Khrushchev has accused me of speaking the language of the imperialists because I attacked the Communists in Iraq, I have become convinced that Moscow is really emerging as the champion of Communism against Arab nationalism."

Friendship between his government and Moscow could be resumed "if Moscow accepts what we are asking of the U.S.S.R. as of Washington and London, that is to say that all understand Arab nationalism and appreciate its dignity and independence, and help instead of fighting against its policy of positive neutrality."

Astonishing

Nasser said it was astonishing that Khrushchev should prefer "the doubtful loyalty of the stateless, non-Arab population of Iraq to the goodwill of the immense Arab country stretching from the Persian Gulf to the Atlantic."

He added: "If these interventionist stop, our friendship, based on Arab nationalism, will certainly be restored."

Nasser indicated that UAR economic co-operation with the U.S.S.R. had not been affected by the dispute with Moscow. The Soviet Ambassador Eugene Kisselov tonight asked to be received by Nasser, on his return to Cairo from Moscow.—France-Press.

Forty-five of the flats will have three bedrooms, each while the other fifteen will have two bedrooms each.

Dulles
Letters

Augusta, Ga., April 16.
The letters exchanged between President Eisenhower and Mr. John Foster Dulles, in which the latter resigned as Secretary of State yesterday, were released here today by White House officials.

Mr. Dulles said: "It is apparent to me that I shall not be well enough soon enough to continue to serve as Secretary of State."
He said he was brought up in the belief that the United States was founded with a mission "to help build where liberty and justice would prevail."
"Today that country faces a formidable and ruthless challenge to adhere steadfastly to our national idealism and national mission, and at the same time avoid the awful catastrophe of war."

Mr. Dulles added:
CONTINUE TO SERVE
"If I can, in a more limited capacity, continue to serve, I shall be happy to do so."
In his letter President Eisenhower wrote, in part:
"You have been a staunch bulwark of our nation against the machinations of Imperialistic Communism. You have won to the side of the free world countless people and inspired in them renewed courage and determination to fight for freedom and principle."
"As a statesman of world stature you have set a record in the stewardship of our foreign relations that stands clear and strong for all to see."

Johannesburg, April 16.
A bushman painting of a ship, believed to be the British East Indian ship, Grosvener which sank off the South African coast in 1782, has been discovered in a cave in the Maclear district of Transkei, Cape Province.

The discoverers, South African artist Walter Ballis and amateur archaeologist Murray Schoonraad, said the painting, in red and white, was in a perfect state of preservation.

Governor, homeward bound from Ceylon when she sank, was carrying 150 passengers and crew and a fortune in gold, silver and jewels. It is believed that bushmen visiting the coast 90 miles away may have seen the ship go down and painted it after returning to the Maclear district.

Another bushman painting in a cave only six miles away shows Bantu tribesmen abducting white women dressed in the billowing skirts of the 18th century.

For a long time scientists have been puzzled why some tribes in Transkei show distinct European characteristics.—China Mail Special.

Mr. Soghal said it was the intention, if the proposition were accepted by the Irish Government, to fly the gambling patrons into Shannon and because of the customs free facilities they would not be subject to taxes within the 700 acres of the airport unless they entered the Republic proper.—China Mail Special.

THE CASBAH DOOMED

Algiers, April 16.
Work began today on demolishing the picturesque Algiers Casbah, the ancient town of tortuous alleys housing 80,000 Mohammedans on the hillside overlooking Algiers Bay.

The authorities intend to demolish it little by little over the years and replace it with modern apartments. Only parts with special architectural interest will be preserved.

A picturesque tourist attraction in normal times, it has always been a problem to the French authorities as a breeding place for disease and a refuge for the Arabians. Guide books emphasized the Casbah was unsafe for tourists at night.—Reuter.

POP—Dumb waitressNO BOUQUET

TOKAY

Budapest, April 16.
Vine growers in Tokay, Hungary's most famous wine region, have reacted to the national campaign to collectivise agriculture by "sabotaging" their vines, according to a provincial paper.

Vineyard owners in Tokay—known in Hungary as the king of wines—had also sold their stocks of manure instead of spreading it on the land, the newspaper said.

Vines had been pruned to give excessive yields this year but these "wicked methods" threatened to "ruin" the vineyards completely in two or three years.

REST TO CHANCE

The reason for this "crime against the country, our people and the Socialist movement," the newspaper added, was that with the speedy development of the collective farm movement, many managers, lessees and even private owners of vineyards had decided to "squeeze as much as possible" out of their vineyards this year, ruining thereby the famous vineyards and leave the rest to chance.—Reuter.

Los Angeles, April 16.
A three-man Royal Air Force team fired Britain's first Thor intermediate range ballistic missile at Vandenberg Air Force Base today.

The launching, originally set for Tuesday morning, had been delayed by a combination of technical hitches and bad weather.

The 85-foot gleaming white missile rose from the launching pad and, with its 4,000,000 horse power rocket engine breaking flame and smoke, soared out over the ocean.

Its speed was soon calculated at about 10,000 mph.

A group of official British observers and journalists watched the firing from 8,000 feet away on the vast American base.

They saw the 40th launching of the Thor which has a range of 1,500 miles and is now being mounted on bases around the British Isles.—Reuter.

QUEEN ASKS TO MEET

Boy Slew Baby Who Sobbed For Food

Manila, April 17.
A 13-year-old boy from a Manila slum area told police yesterday he strangled his 2-year-old brother because he could not hear the hungry boy's cry for food.

Tedillo Bayot, whose ill-fed family live on sweet potatoes and other bits of food they can gather from garbage cans and beg from friends and strangers, was placed in jail after he confessed having killed his younger brother Pedro.

Pedro's body was discovered in a vacant lot near President Carlos P. Garcia's private residence in Bohol Avenue.

Tedillo, thin, sad and confused as he was questioned by police, said he and Pedro and another brother, 3-year-old Antonio, were playing some distance from their makeshift house near Highway 54 while waiting for their mother.

She had left early to look for food.
At about noon, Tedillo said, Pedro started crying and asked for food.
He said he told his brother to stop crying and when he would not Tedillo placed his hand around Pedro's neck and squeezed until the crying stopped.—U.P.I.

Red Arms In Iraq

Teheran, April 16.
Three shipments of Soviet military equipment have arrived at the Iraqi port of Basra, it was reported here today.

Reports from Abadan said Iranian oil workers there who could see the ship docking in Basra hurled shouts of "Down with Communism" and "Servants of Red Imperialism" at the Iraqis.

Meanwhile Iran was having its own internal troubles.
Strikes for improvement in living conditions were reported in the oil centres at Bandarshour and Azhajari.
Authorities here were unable, however, to confirm reports of clashes between workers and police in the cities.—U.P.I.

WORKERS ON TOUR

Ottawa, April 16.
A Canadian member of the Buckingham Palace staff gave his assurances today that the working man and not the local official will be the centre of the Queen's attention during her visit to Canada.

Edmond Butler, assistant Palace Press secretary, said the Queen wants to see, and be seen by, ordinary Canadians during the tour to open the St. Lawrence Seaway.

"There'll be no unrollings on the tour, which is the Queen's request," he said. "I don't think there are any free plantings."

Mr. Butler, who just completed a rehearsal of the Eastern portion of the route, said the Queen will meet the loggers who fell the trees and the miners who hack away at the mine face when she visits logging and mining towns.

He also revealed to newsmen that the Queen and Prince Philip, who arrive in Canada on June 18, will visit farms in Eastern and Western Canada.

The eastern farm is located on tiny Prince Edward Island which the Queen will visit in late July.

12,000 Miles

"The Queen wanted to do three things in Canada," Mr. Butler said. "They are to see how Canadians work, to see how Canadians play and to see how Canadians live."

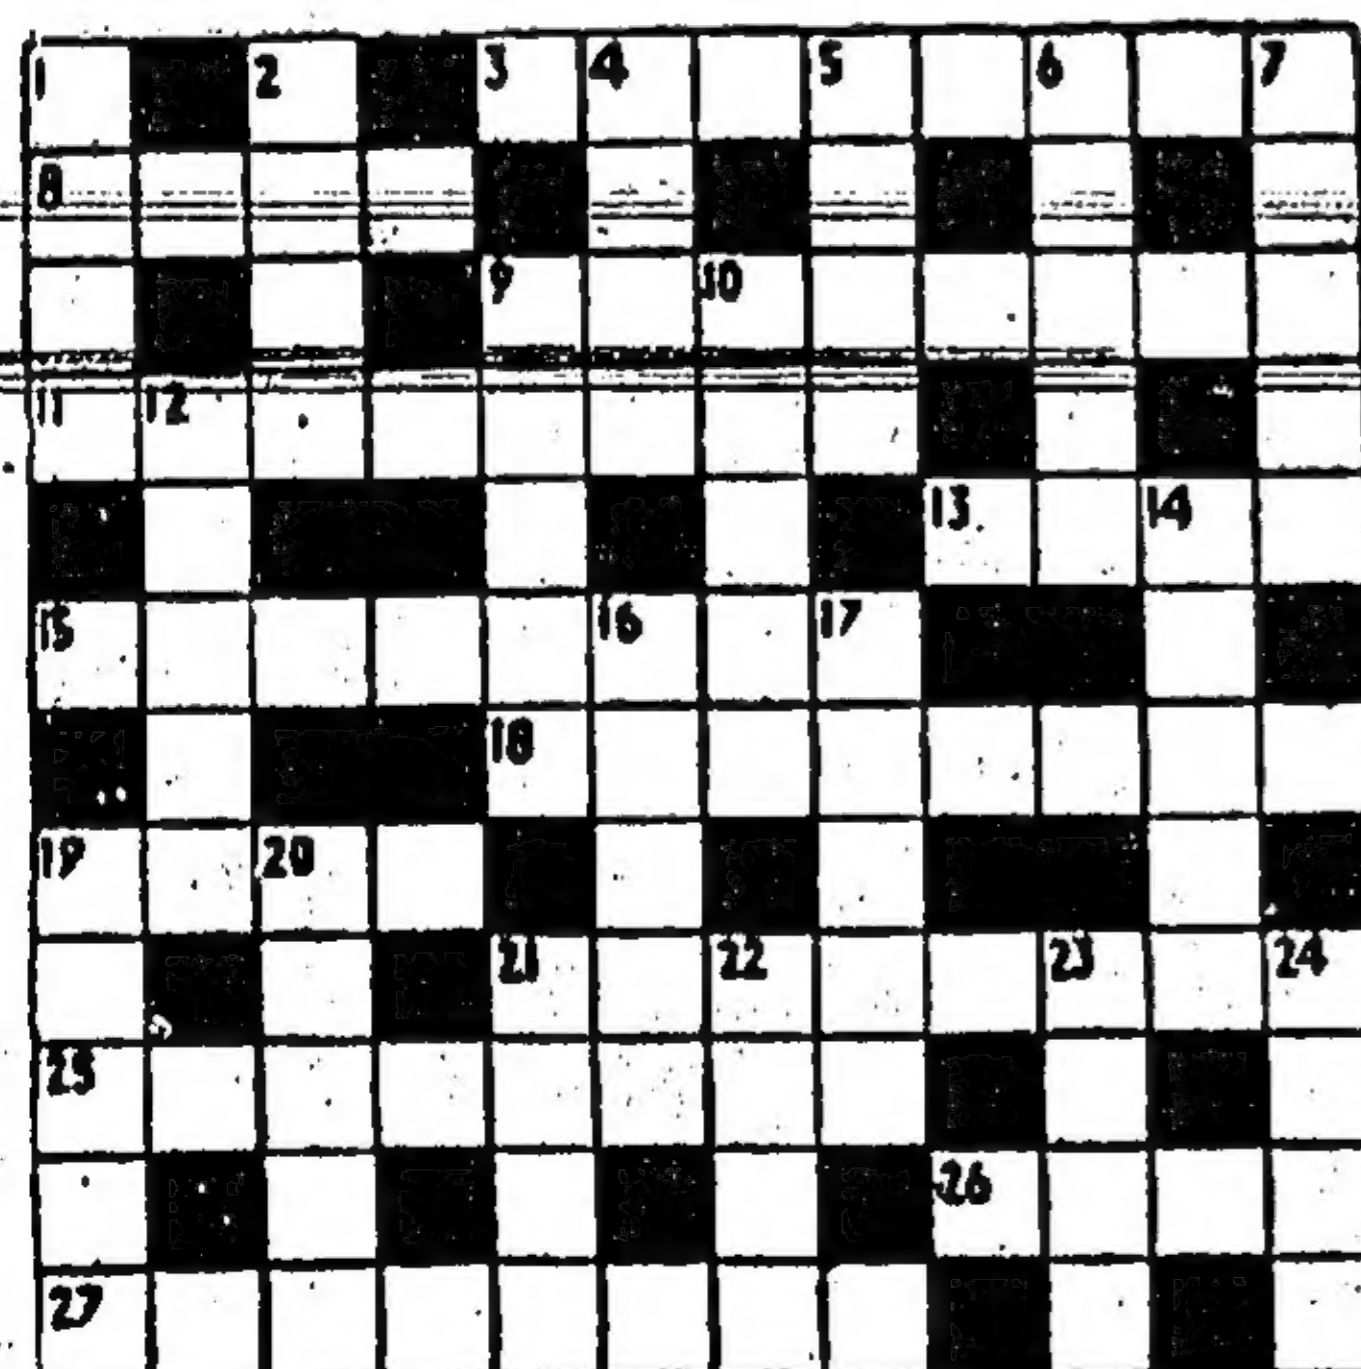

To achieve this, the Queen will sail, fly and drive 12,000 miles in 44 days.
The tour will take her from the rocky coastline of Newfoundland on the Atlantic to Victoria, British Columbia, on the Pacific and on to the Yukon and Northwest Territories.—U.P.I.

Hideous Toll In South American Floods

Buenos Aires, April 16.
An estimated 17 people have been killed and 300,000 driven from their homes in five nations in the worst floods in modern South American history.

The floods have struck large areas of Argentina, Uruguay, Bolivia, Brazil and Paraguay.

All the deaths recorded so far were in Argentina and Uruguay, according to an unofficial count.

The cost in material damage amounts to millions of dollars. The hardest hit of the countries appears to be Argentina, where the situation has officially been described as "critical."

The country's homeless have been estimated at 50,000 and the figure is being increased hourly.

In the town of Concordia alone, 25,000 people have lost their homes through the floods.

Famine Threat

In the rich region of Mesopotamia, thousands of acres of pasture lands have been flooded and the waters of the Rio de la Plata and the Rio Uruguay are 3.60 metres and 16 metres above their normal level.

Meanwhile, aircraft have been waiting for a break in the weather to parachute desperately-needed food and medical supplies into several towns in Entre Rios Province.

In Uruguay, the floods are the most severe on record and the situation has been aggravated by a 10-mile-an-hour wind.

Hole-In-Heart Girl Has Baby

England Rises To Defend Cup Final Hymn

London, April 16.
British football fans will be told shortly whether "Abide with Me," one of the best-loved Christian hymns, will be cut from the traditional community singing at the Cup Final at Wembley on May 2.

Every year since 1927, the 100,000 crowd at Wembley Stadium has sung the hymn before the match.

But now the ritual is the centre of a rumour among football fans, sports writers, Wembley Stadium and the Football Association.

A Wembley Stadium official gave instructions that the hymn should not be included in the community singing at this year's Cup final.

He added that girls of a keep-fit association would take its place.

Last night, Sir Stanley Rous, secretary of the FA, said the stadium had no authority to make such a statement.

He said the appropriate committee of the association had not yet decided whether to exclude "Abide with Me."

"Quit Meddling"

The hymn and its ties with one of Britain's greatest sporting associations were hotly defended today by many British sports writers.

The Daily Herald headlined its comment "Quit meddling, FA and get in touch." Its columnist said the FA decision would "prove to be one of the most unpopular they have ever made."

The Daily Mirror said the proposed ban had brought a storm of protest from its readers and demanded that the hymn be restored immediately to the Wembley scene.

Criticisms

Commenting on the protests today, an FA spokesman said: "A decision will be made within a week."

"We know that the hymn is part of Wembley tradition."

Minister Receives First Coin

Paris, April 16.
The French Finance Minister, M. Antoine Pinay, today received the first "heavy franc" — a silver five-franc coin being issued to replace the present 500-franc notes (about seven shillings) which it equals in value.

It was handed to him by the Director of the French Mint.

The new coins will be struck at the rate of 60 million a month, and it is hoped there will be sufficient reserves by the end of the year to release them for public circulation.

There are 500 million 500-franc notes in circulation.

The design of the new coin—the effigy of a woman sowing grain—is the same as on French coins issued from 1899 to World War I.

It was chosen to illustrate that France is returning to a stable currency, for before 1914 the franc was the strongest currency in the world.—Reuters.

London, April 16.
Marty Wilde, 6 foot 3 inches, 20-year-old British rock 'n' roll singer, has been found medically unfit for National Service.

A statement issued by his manager's Press office said today the War Office had given no reasons for refusing Wilde.

Severe Corns

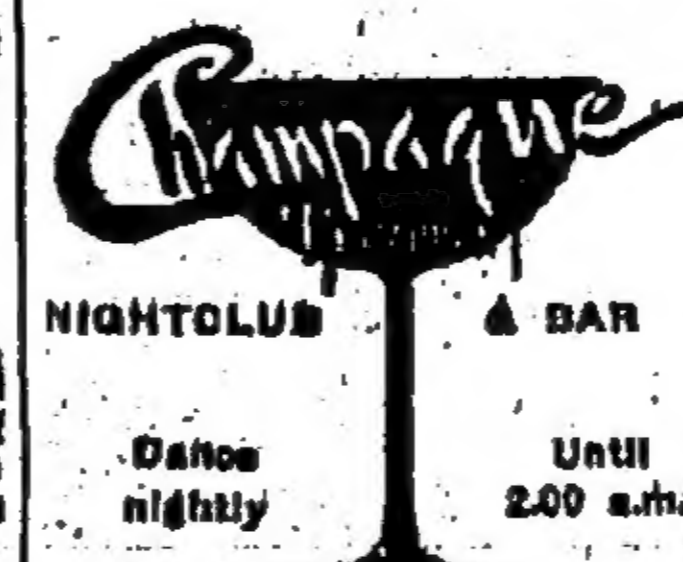

"It is well known, however, that Marty Wilde has suffered from detective feet, including fallen arches and severe corns, for some years," the statement said.

Wildie, a former timberyard worker from South London, made his name on television. He is now making a British film, "Jetstream."

In March Terry Dene, 10, another rock 'n' roll singer, was discharged as unfit for military service after two months in the army.—Reuters.

TUBE PARTY PROTEST IN COMMONS

London, April 16.
Labour Members of Parliament protested in the House of Commons today at a recent bottle party held by 200 young London socialists aboard one carriage of an underground tube train.

Mr. Ernest Fernyhough (Labour) asked how many prosecutions the police had brought. He said according to Press reports 15 constables and sergeants tried to check these people.

The incident caused "great embarrassment and inconvenience to the law-abiding travelling public."

When people behaved in trains in this hooligan manner they should be arrested, he said.

Not Called

Mr. David Renton, Under-Secretary at the Home Office, said Metropolitan police did not patrol London Transport property.

This was done by London Transport Executive's own police who did not call for London Police on this occasion.

Mr. Emanuel Shinwell, former Labour Defence Minister, asked if the Transport Executive was allowing these incidents to occur without making any protest. Were no representations made to the police?

Mr. Renton reiterated that the Executive had its own police and did not call on the London Police.—Reuters.

GHOSTS... for tourists only

THOSE masters of the picturesque fib, the British Travel Association, have done it again. They are now persuading Americans to come to Britain to see our most invisible assets. Ghosts.

I quote from their Guide to British Ghosts — "Long nights are the best for ghost hunters. So why not visit Britain in the autumn, or early spring? In these lovely seasons you get the best of both worlds."

Unlike the lucky inhabitants of the British that the BTA publicises (which is another country of the same name full of kilt-wearing Welshmen called Shakespeare still ruled by the First Elizabeth) I have never seen a ghost.

A move among ghosts?

But in case there is a move among British ghosts to reserve themselves exclusively for tourists I thought it was time to talk to one of the ten thousand ghosts which BTA tell Americans we glory in.

That was how I came to be lying in a four-poster that Mary Tudor slept in 400 years ago, waiting to put the case for our haunting-rights to a monarch whose firmness of mind one could be reasonably sure would have outlived her death.

It was at Sawston Hall, near Cambridge, one of those handsome, high-shouldered Tudor mansions so unkindly called a "pile".

Mary's ghost probably lives haunting Sawston because it was one of the few places where they did her a good turn.

When she was being pursued by the Duke of Northumberland's men the Huddleston family (who are still there) took her in for the night. They gave her a bed to whose comfort I can personally testify, but she did not get a full night's sleep just the same.

Tracked down

The Duke's supporters tracked her down and she had to escape again, dressed as a dairy maid. "Nobody's slept in that bed for years," said the present Mrs Huddleston.

She is a granddaughter of the late Duke of Norfolk and a very attractive example of the nation-opening owner-guides that our aristocracy have suddenly turned into.

The log-light plays on her slim legs and short grey curly hair as we sit in the paneled great hall at Sawston and she tells me what to expect.

"When I came here first as a bride I used to hear Mary Tudor playing the virginals. She was a very fine player, you know."

Mrs Huddleston's husband, Captain Reginald Eyre Huddleston, R.N. (Retired), who refers to his ancient family as "our pack," has never seen Mary himself, but declines to sleep in the room she is said to haunt.

Her secretary, Miss Frances Kay, claims to have heard plain-song in her bath.

I learned about the last person who had slept in Mary's bed, and strange noises all night. The fact that his head was under the clothes prevented him from trying out whether there was anything to see below.

I am shown the room. And not even the BTA could exaggerate about it. A low fire burning. Walls hung with superb Flemish tapestry. Massive Tudor furniture whose carved, dark complexity sparkles.

The bed is hung with velvet the colour of old gold, and there is plenty of room for owls to perch on the canopy.

On the bedside table are: 1—a large cow-bell, for raising the alarm; 2—a book called Haunted England; 3—a bedside lamp; 4—a large flashlight. In case Mary should cut the current, 5—last resort—a candle in a silver candlestick which bears the crest of the Huddlestons: "A bloody scalp supported by two arms."

Last log

The last log rolls over with a dragon-like hiss and bursts into flame. The tapestries start to flicker into life. Three carved heads over the fireplace grin and grimace.

Suddenly there is a tinkling sound. Hurray, the virginals! But no, it's only a rather melodious clock striking 11.

I start to doze. Heavens, I mustn't go to sleep. So I make horrid patterns of the shadows of my hands in the fire-light. I try a few moans and ghostly noises.

But it is no good. I fall asleep. All is not lost, however, because the next thing I know is a tinkling sound again. Again, it's not the virginals, but the melodious clock.

Midnight. I had been mysteriously awakened at midnight. Now something was going to happen.

I lay there with my scalp creeping backwards and forwards like a rook on the bar-track square. Every sound rang round that resonant old room like a sergeant's shout.

Suddenly, struggling with disbelief, I became aware of something.

"Could it be?" I asked myself. "Could it possibly be that I was one of those thick, obtuse insensitive people who could fall asleep in a haunted room?"

I was.

The Defiant Ones

BEGIN IT TODAY

Chained together
so there's no
getting away...

A NEW FILM now showing in Hongkong, provides a compelling commentary on one of the world's most acute problems—racial division. From America, where it has received high acclaim for its unusually bold and perceptive handling of this subject, comes "The Defiant Ones."

It sets out simply and dramatically by taking two men, one black, one white, and binding them together—by a chain. Because of this chain they are forced to live, fight, and risk together.

Can two men who hate the colour of each other's skin learn, by sharing peril, to see what is far deeper than the skin? JOHN LAMBERT now tells the story in the words of a reporter who followed it all....

DATELINE:

Missouri, but maybe it could be anywhere.

8 p.m. It was raining hard as the gaol truck, carrying 12 chain-gang convicts, rumbled along the lonely road.

But it was not the bleak night or the slippery road that made the driver growl with anger. It was the blues song that one of the convicts, a big Negro called Noah Cullen, kept chanting in the back of the truck.

"Shut up, do you hear me?" yelled the driver.

The Negro took no notice. He sang on in that insolent defiance.

THE FILM is produced and directed by one of America's top film men, Stanley Kramer. Titled "The Defiant Ones," it stars Tony Curtis and Sidney Poitier.

It tells the story of two convicts, one black, one white, who are chained together and forced to live and fight together.

It is a story of two men who hate the colour of each other's skin, but who learn to see what is far deeper than the skin.

TONY CURTIS AND SIDNEY POITIER—BOUND BY IRON AND PERIL

Anger sparked in Cullen's eyes. "Yesah, boss!" he answered. The contempt in his voice seemed to reach to the bottom of his soul. Then he shouted: "NO MORE YES-SAH, BOSS!" as if the words were a vow he made long ago.

The fight

Convict chains are made to last. And though Jackson and Cullen were strong men they could not break this one. "Let's go," said Jackson. "Let's head for Pineville." The Negro's hard face showed a twinge of fear. "Pineville is south," he muttered. "I don't go south."

His wish

SEVEN A.M. After running most of the night Jackson and Cullen reached the edge of a swamp. Jackson, with sour humour, pounded a rock on the chain between them.

"I'm gonna buy me a pair of Lucksin shoes," he said. "With a brand new suit and a silk shirt. And I'll be Charlie Potatoes..."

He laughed gleefully at the name he had made up. It seemed to stand for the man he wanted to be. "Charlie Potatoes," he repeated. "Coming down the street with a panama hat and a good-looking gal."

He tugged at Cullen. "Come on, boy," he said. "You've got a free arm. Hit it now."

"Maybe your head's hard enough," Jibed Jackson, lunging at the Negro. They locked in combat. But their weariness, and the chain, stopped them. "You kinda got the advantage on me, boy," gasped Jackson. "You're awful tough to see if the light ain't good."

Victor

The Negro gripped him by the throat. "But you can hear me, Jokers—so listen good. Either we go north or go right back." "You're right, boy," said the white man. "But the time is gonna come... It's sure gonna come." He emphasised the words by twisting his hands as if they held the Negro's neck.

8 a.m. Jackson and Cullen reached the bank of a river that would divide them from their hunters. But the chain stopped them being divided from each other. They waded into the flood waters.

In mid-river Cullen stumbled and fell headlong into the racing current. He carried the white man with him as they crashed against the rocks.

Then Jackson clutched desperately at a tree overhanging the river bank. He wound the chain around a branch. Then slowly, agonisingly, he hoisted himself from the turbulent waters, pulling the half-conscious Negro after him.

Thanks

As they sprawled to the safety of the muddy bank the Negro touched the white man's arm. His face, bleated with river water and suffering, had a look of strange gentleness. "I almost swallowed half that river..." he gasped. "Thanks."

"What for?" asked Jackson. "For pulling me out," said the Negro, with a weak smile. "The white man looked at him with narrowed eyes. 'Man, I didn't pull you out,' he croaked venomously. 'I kept you from pulling me in.'"

Time for Sir Anthony to say yes to that earldom

IN the sheltered garden of a Wiltshire manor house Sir Anthony Eden bends over his flower beds. Sizing them up, he can tell just how they will look by the summer, for Sir Anthony is a man who knows what he is doing among plants.

But today, perhaps, he is not thinking of overmuch about his borders. His mind, more likely, is taken up with another thing.

Sir Anthony, two years after his tragic resignation, has lost none of his old interest in public affairs.

Alive to all the issues that disturb the country and divide the world, alert to every new development, he remains a sharp, informed observer of the international scene.

I would give a lot to know his thoughts as he looks on from Fyfield Manor; and so, I suggest, would many other people.

Guidance

But Sir Anthony has, as yet, no platform from which to express himself. He is without a forum in which to declare his views on current policies and offer the nation some guidance.

A suitable forum lies to hand, however—and it is one which Sir Anthony, if he chose, could enter right way. The House of Lords.

Two days after he gave up the Premiership the Queen asked him to accept an earldom. It was the customary tribute to an outgoing Prime Minister.

But Sir Anthony begged to be excused the honour just then, and the understanding, delicately expressed at the time, was that he might take it up later.

His reason for declining an immediate peerage, as I know it, was quite simply the feeling that an earldom is best on the shoulders sustained by a good private fortune—by something substantially more than his own small inherited means and his ex-Premier's pension of £2,000.

Added to this was uncertainty about the future of his son Nicholas, who might have wished to go into Parliament himself.

Nicholas Eden has so far shown no political ambition, however, and I do not believe that he has any.

Meanwhile, Sir Anthony's financial circumstances have undergone a spectacular improvement.

His forthcoming memoirs, it is believed, will bring him £100,000 or more.

Sir Anthony has become a well-to-do man—much better off than ever he was before. At 61 he can look forward to a life of the greatest comfort.

He now possesses the material things which, in his way of thinking, "set off" a peerage. Only the rank is missing.

Mr Macmillan, I suggest, would bring honour to himself as well if he were to persuade Sir Anthony to take up the earldom.

By so doing he would enable Sir Anthony to make his voice heard in the country.

It is a voice to which millions would listen with attention.

JUST FANCY THAT

A MAN admitted at West London that he stole a sports car standing outside a house by telephoning a garage and getting them to tow it to a lock-up garage on the plea that it had broken down. "An extraordinary way of going about it," said the magistrate, Mr K. J. P. Barraclough, remanding Leonard Thurston, aged 25, of Rosary Gardens, South Kensington, for a medical report.

THE lady driver in distress on the Cambridge road told patrolman Richard Doggett: "My Austin Seven stopped suddenly, and won't move an inch."

Patrolman Doggett checked from front to rear. The engine was in order. The clutch functioned. The brakes were first class.

As a last resort he crawled underneath and found a travelling rug wrapped round the transmission shaft.

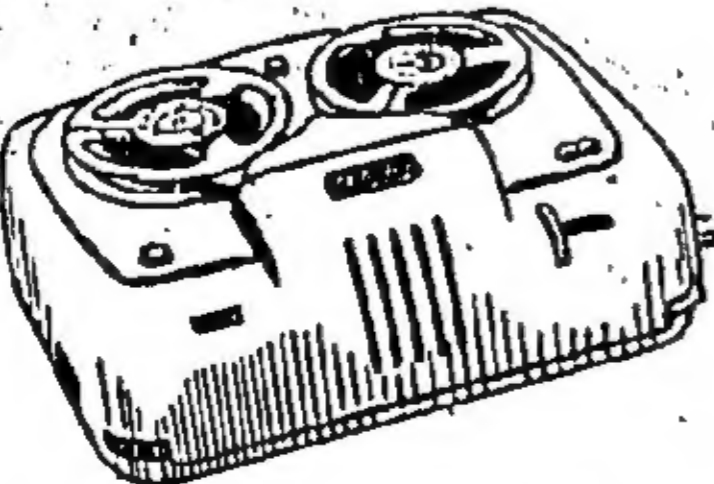

It had worked through a small hole in the floorboards.

SIDE GLANCES By Galbraith

"I've been retired from the force for 20 years and I've been wondering—on the case with no running board, where do you put your foot while you make out a ticket?"

Hazel Meyrick Says . . .

IN the not-so-distant days of popping, sputtering, spitting keyers who would have thought that one day we might have hot water at the touch of a button.

Today, you can do just that. Coming on to the market is a new gas storage water heater which operates by push button. This is a neat, 15 inches high unit, the Prestex 520.

Press the button and a pilot light ignites the main jets. Six minutes later you have a gallon of water at a piping 140 degrees Fahrenheit.

Water can be drawn at a lower temperature than 140 degrees, and the main gas burners can be turned out at any time, by pulling out the control button. Turning on the cold water tap forces the hot water out of the delivery spout. The heater will subsequently supply a gallon of hot water every four minutes with further presses of the button. Because it is of the storage type, it will keep the water hot for a considerable period.

FOR TRAVELLERS

Wonderful space-saver for travellers and holidaymakers—the increasingly popular stretch-nylon slippers. Light, comfortable, easy-to-care-for, they take up virtually no room in a grip or suitcase.

Most versions I've seen are plain or checked. But one deluxe style incorporates Lurex yarn, is edged with narrow black lace and finished off with a brilliant stud.

WHITE LEGS

When white nylons were introduced recently I doubted their chances of popularity. Seems I was wrong.

One major British stocking firm has had such success with the first version of white nylons—30 denier crepe—that it is introducing two other lines. Both seem-free and 15 denier, one style is plain knit, the other micro-mesh.

Exporting a small son in the children's department at a West End dressmaker, I saw a moppet—she was no more than five—walk up to the receptionist and say, "I've come for my rinse and set." And rinsed and set she was.

In my day, hairdressing for little kids consisted of washing and brushing. And a good thing, too.

FOR THE CURVES

Still looking for the perfect bra? A British firm now claims it can provide just what you're looking for.

Secret of the confidence behind this claim is a newly-patented moulding garment which allows brassieres to be made with absolute accuracy to any shape the customer specifies.

Experts say this is an advance on previous models because it follows contours exactly and provides a perfect fit.

Good Looks Require More Than Make-Up

FOR THAT "shining morning face," suds up under a shower first thing. There's more to beauty than just make-up!

SOME women seem to think make-up is all you need to be attractive! They couldn't be more wrong!

Cosmetics count, and that's for certain, but they're only part of the picture. Any number of other things enter into the making of a truly attractive woman.

Beauty begins with cleanliness!

Shower Starts Day

Without a spic-and-span, bandbox-fresh appearance, no woman can look pretty, no matter how skillfully she may apply make-up. That's why a shower is usually the first thing on a wise woman's daily schedule. It needn't be a production—there's no time for that in a busy morning. Just a quick sudsing-and-rinsing under the spray is all that's needed to make you fresh as a daisy for the day ahead.

Cleanliness also calls for keeping clothes spotless. Linen and nylons must be rinsed out nightly. You can't skip this job, especially in summer when it's extra-important to be fastidious.

As for your complexion is concerned, the most important considerations are: thorough washing morning and night, proper sleep (lack of same leaves skin grey), good diet (the wrong foods can work havoc with skin texture and cause blemishes).

While it's true that make-up does marvels for eyes, proper sleep is important for eye beauty, too. If you're a habitual night owl, all the mascara in the world won't make eyes sparkle. There's no substitute for eight hours on the pillow each night.

Finally, one of the most important and noticeable beauty assets is good posture. Go into a slump and you spoil your entire appearance. Stand tall and carry yourself like a queen if you want those admiring glances to come your way.

STORIES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Willy And The Piglets

—He Tries To Teach Them Some Manners—

By MAX TRELL

BLINKY Mole was having quite a good laugh about it. He was sitting in his rocking chair, looking at the five little piglets who were sitting on the floor around him.

"Punniest thing I've ever heard," he said. "Just imagine Willy Toot trying to do that!"

Peals of laughter

Then Blinky burst into peals of laughter, louder than before. "Just imagine Willy Toot trying to do that!" he repeated. "Just imagine him trying to do that!"

Knarf and Hamid begged Blinky to tell the story from the beginning.

"You laugh so much, Blinky dear," said Hamid, "that we couldn't understand half of it."

Blinky Mole nodded, settled himself more comfortably in his rocking chair, lit his pipe and began again.

"Well, as I told you," said Blinky, "Willy Toot was invited to have dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Pig and the five piglets."

"Were those the Piglets that went to market?" asked Knarf.

His Best Clothes

"I'm not sure," said Blinky Mole. "I may have been there. But that has nothing to do with this story about Willy."

"They're playing in the back garden and, sure enough, there were the five little pigs, sitting in the mud and making mud pies." The three boy pigs were dressed in dungarees and T-shirts and rubber sneakers.

"Children," said Willy, as he stood for a moment looking at them, "you're not going to stay clean very long for dinner if you keep on making mud pies. You'd better stop."

"We like making mud pies," said the first boy piglet, here, look at this one, Willy."

"With that he threw his mud pie at Willy. It hit Willy in the middle of his new green coat."

"And look at this mud pie," said the first girl piglet. "It's got pebbles in it and bits of carrot and tomato."

"She threw the mud pie at Willy, too. It hit him on top of the head."

"At this, all the other piglets threw their mud pies at Willy. They hit him in different places—in the face, on his shirt, on his shoes and on his brand-new yellow trousers."

"Stop!" shouted Willy. "You pigs have no manners at all!"

"Willy started chasing after them. The five piglets scattered through the mud. They jumped up and down in glee as Willy tripped and fell heading into the mud.

"Half an hour later, the five piglets came into the dining room of the Pigsty and asked for their dinner."

"Oh, dear," said Mrs. Pig, "you're as dirty as ever. I thought Mr. Willy Toot was going to teach you table manners."

"By the way," said Mr. Pig, "Where is Mr. Willy Toot?"

At this, Blinky Mole chuckled with laughter again.

"Well," said Knarf, "where was Willy?"

"Sitting in the mud," said Blinky. "All you could see was the whites of his eyes. The rest of him was black mud! Just imagine anybody trying to teach pigs table manners, just imagine that!"

And Blinky laughed and laughed and so did Knarf and so did Hamid.

Rupert and the Blunderpuss—35

Following the voice, Rupert came upon his two best pals, Bill and Algy, pinned against the angle of the barn and looking very frightened. While the Blunderpuss, leaps up and down before them in a threatening way. "Oh, Rupert, help!" shouts Bill.

"What is this black thing? Come and help us before it kills us!" Remembering the conjurer's words, Rupert screws up his courage.

"Nice guess. Pretty guess!" he says loudly, moving forward. To his great relief the Blunderpuss calms down and faces him.

And Blinky laughed and laughed and so did Knarf and so did Hamid.

Camp Fire Girl Cookery

FROM Camp Hitinowa in Maine to Camp Yallani in California, I was saying, "Thousands of Camp Fire Girls are actively practising outdoor living."

"When does training in cooking start?" asked the Chef.

"It starts on joining. Camp Fire Girls range in age from 7 to 18 years. In time they receive invaluable training in general cooking as well as in planning menus, building fires, cooking and serving the foods, down to the last clean-up detail."

"Excellent!" he exclaimed. "I shall do likewise! The wasteline must not interfere when a taste-test is in order!"

"Here's a breakfast favourite of the girls, new and different, banana pancakes."

"It might also be excellent as dessert! If the pancakes are made smaller, in French manner, Madame," observed the chef.

Traditional Foods

"Of course they love the traditional hamburgers, 'franks' and roasted corn. But as so many convenience foods are now available, they've worked out a number of combination entrees, which are quick, easy and not expensive."

Camper's Delight: Dice ½ lb. bacon and fry until crisp. Remove from the pan. Pour off all but 2 tbsp. of the drippings. Blend in 2 tbsp. flour. Add 1 tall can evaporated milk and stir-cook until thickened.

Drop by tablespoons on a hot, lightly oiled heavy skillet. Turn when the tops are covered with tiny bubbles and the edges cooked.

Serve with maple syrup or honey. Two cups mix makes 16 average pancakes.

Drain 1 (1 lb.) can peas. Stir the liquid into evaporated milk mixture. Stir in 1 lb. grated processed American cheese. When melted, add the peas; heat, but do not boil.

Spoon over hot buttered toast. Sprinkle with the crisp bacon. Serves 6-8.

And, here's the Camp Fire Girls' favourite chocolate drink.

Milk Chocolate: In a large saucepan, combine ½ c. cocoa, ½ c. sugar and ¼ tsp. salt. Stir in 1 qt. water; stir until boiling. Let simmer for three minutes.

Tomato Aspic Saladettes
Broiled Ham Slices
Raisin Sauce
Sweet Potatoes (Canned)
Green Beans
Banana Flan
Hot or Iced Coffee or Tea
Milk

BRIAN LONDON ARRIVES IN INDIANAPOLIS — PREDICTS SURPRISE FOR PATTERSON

Indianapolis, April 16. Square-jawed Brian London flew into Indianapolis late today and said heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson "may be in for a surprise" when they meet in their title scrap at the Coliseum on May 1. The former British Empire champion met newsmen within minutes of arriving. He was accompanied by his father, Jack, and brother, Jack Jr., and said he is ready to go to work. In fact, he said he would have his first workout tonight to shake the kinks out of his 210-pound frame.

"I'm a hard trainer," London said. He said he would work out with his brother, who is scheduled to fight in the supporting programme, until he has several sparring partners lined up. "Patterson thinks this is a tune-up fight, but he may be surprised," said London. "I got my own ideas about the fight—I think I've got a good chance. 'Greatest Chance'."

"If I beat him, I upset the lot of them. This is the greatest chance of my life."

London said he has been in training since losing the British Empire title to Henry Cooper in London last January. He hopes to scale down to about 205 pounds for the title go.

He said he has plenty of respect for Patterson. "He isn't a Joe Louis or a Rocky Marciano, but he's a fighter. London has won 27 of 31 professional fights, 19 via the knockout route.

Perfectly relaxed with a cup of hot tea while photographers flash bulbs popped around him, he said the fact that the fight was moved here from Las Vegas, Nevada, "doesn't interest me."

The main thing is I'm in it."

London said he made no attempt to hide from sports writers since his arrival in New York last Saturday. He was registered under his own name at the Hotel New Yorker, but couldn't talk about the fight because most of the arrangements were still pending.

London said he plans additional fights in the United States, regardless of the outcome of his bout with Patterson. Officials said contracts for the fight—including a return match clause—should be signed within the next few days after Patterson arrives.

The champion was expected to get here Saturday morning and establish his training quarters at the Coliseum. London will train at Municipal Gardens, a city-owned recreation centre, U.P.I.

'Eldorado-Italia' Racer To Compete In Indianapolis 500

Modena, April 16. The Italian car racing stable of Maserati will enter their powerful Eldorado-Italia racer in the Indianapolis 500 miles race on May 30.

The car, built for last year's Monza 500, has an eight-cylinder, 4,200cc engine. The car will be tested on the Monza circuit next week.

Today, Argentina's former world champion, Juan Manuel Fangio, returned to the track here at the wheel of a Stanguellini Junior. He did several laps in the car which will be driven by one of his Argentine pupils, Juan Manuel Bordeu, in the Monza Grand Prix Junior Formula race on Sunday—France-Press.

RED LIGHT, NORSE KING FAVOURED TO WIN AFTERNOON'S MAIN RACES

The second day's programme of the Hongkong Jockey Club's Eleventh Race Meeting continues tomorrow with another ten interesting events.

The first Saddling Bell will be rung at 1.30 p.m. and the first race run at 2.00 p.m. sharp.

The most important events are the Sassoon Challenge Cup for Class 1 ponies and the St George's Cup for Class 3 ponies.

Here are my estimates of the chances:

FIRST RACE
Leicester Handicap (First Section): One Mile.

The opening event is confined to First Section, Class 8 ponies with Novice Jockeys as riders. King Rider (U. Kum Lun) is in such a great form at the moment during morning gallops that this bay gelding looks like being the winner over this mile event although strong opposition is expected from Ever-glo (H. Fothergill).

Ringo Lai will ride Tonber which should pose as a dangerous outsider.

SECOND RACE
Norfolk Handicap (First Section): Six Furlongs.

Among the entries I prefer the combination of E. S. Wong and All Gay the best. With a decent getaway at the start, All Gay will be most difficult to beat.

Bluegrass (H. M. Botelho) is rounding into fine form and should be a threat while Giant Knight (K. Kwok) can place.

THIRD RACE
Lincoln Handicap (First Section): One Mile.

With M. Samra as its pilot, it is difficult to foresee any other pony but Diamond Lil passing the winning post first.

Perfectibility has been knocking at the door of success for some time now, and with a little luck at the start it may reacquaint itself with the judges.

Fai Chi (Ringo Lai) and Golden Bear (A. Ostrouff) are two ponies which are kept.

ing tip top form and Advancement (Lam King Tak) has maintained its fitness since placing fourth on the first day of the Easter Race Meeting.

FOURTH RACE
Sassoon Challenge Cup: From 2-Mile Post.

This is the first important event of the day in which Class 1 ponies will fight out the issue. Fung Yung-sun's Red Light (154 lbs.), K. Kwok up, should be heavily backed to win this race against a field of five starters.

Winning Stag (Alex Lam) has galloped particularly well in training and has been selected in some circles to beat Red Light.

FIFTH RACE
Norfolk Handicap (Second Section): Six Furlongs.

By virtue of its second placing behind Angela in the Encouragement Handicap (Second Section) over this distance at the Annual Race Meeting, Forward View has a grand opportunity in winning this race. It will again be taken out by H. C. Phi, and as far as I can see its only real challenge will come from Lombard (T. H. Yau).

Freer Kien (P. Plumby) and French Bean (C. F. Lai) may have something to say here and are not to be neglected.

SIXTH RACE
St George's Cup: 1 1/4-Mile.

This is the second important race of the day in which Class 3 ponies will battle out the finish. Private reports on Norse King, with M. Samra on top, are most encouraging.

By virtue of its win in the Somerset Handicap over the two-mile post for Class 9 ponies at the Easter Race Meeting, New Delhi will no doubt be in good demand and I feel it will have a good chance of winning again.

Sunstroke and Possibility II are quite at home over this distance and should be seriously considered.

Saratoga (K. Kwok) is the best outsider.

TENTH RACE
Cornwall Handicap (Second Section): Six Furlongs.

Second batch of Class 3 ponies will contest the last race of the Eleventh Race Meeting.

Fai Chi (P. Plumby) appears to have the best recommendation for a win here.

The pony to watch, however, is Victoria Peak which will be taken out by M. Samra. It has been showing improved form lately and it will give Yia Chi a keen fight.

There is Mahan (Chun Kit) to be considered as this pony has been making rapid improvement and the distance should suit it.

Top Speed (K. Kwok) is considered good enough to extend the other starters and may cause an upset here.

Cut this out and take it to the races

tomorrow for your guidance

JUNIOR ASIAN

SOCCER GAMES

TO BE FILMED

Kuala Lumpur, April 16.

Malayan officials today announced plans to film the historic junior Asian youth soccer festival beginning here on Saturday.

Ten nations or territories, including Hongkong, are competing in this festival. It is the first tournament of its kind in Asia.

A spokesman for the Malayan film unit said highlights of the ten-day festival would be filmed.

A 20-minute film covering the opening ceremony by the King of Malaya, the final and scenes from matches would be produced.

He said the unit could not undertake a full-length film because of the tremendous cost.

The proposed feature would be screened in Malaya and probably abroad soon after the tournament. — China Mail Special.

SPORTS PERSONALITIES

JACK PARKER
A Champion
Athlete
Who Almost
Passed By Unnoticed

Quite often, a well-known sportsman passes through the Colony, without so much as causing a flicker of recognition amongst the sports-conscious public.

Take Jack Parker for example, our sports personality for this week.

He has been in the Colony now for the past two years, yet how many of you know that he is at present holder of the British native 110 metres hurdles record or that he has competed in some of the world's top athletic events and turned in sterling performances?

Sprint Champion

In school, he was the sprint champion although he admits quite modestly, "The standard wasn't very high." Just for the record, however, one of his best performances in school was when he won the 220 yards event in the time of 23.2 seconds.

He left school in 1945 and joined Liverpool University, where once again, he concentrated mostly on sprint events. He graduated from the University in 1948 and went back to London. It was then that he decided he wanted to try his hand at hurdling. Why? "Because I had the height (he is 6 feet 2 inches tall) the strength and a certain amount of speed."

He was taken under wing by John Le Musurier, chief national coach for the South of England under whose guidance he quickly developed into star material.

There were almost daily training sessions, but Jack plodded away diligently and to say that he was justly rewarded would be putting it mildly.

Best Year

Since 1951, he has represented Great Britain in nearly all the top international meets. He went to Helsinki for the 1952 Olympics, the Empire Games in Vancouver, the European championships in Bern and in 1956 to the Olympics in Melbourne.

At Helsinki he reached the semi-finals of the 110 metres hurdles. During the European championships, he came second in that event to the Russian Rulandik.

In Melbourne, however, he had too much on his mind (making arrangements for his trip to Hongkong) to be able to concentrate fully and was eliminated in the heats.

Best Race

His best year was in 1955 when he was unbeaten in the whole of Europe and was clocked in at 14.5 seconds for the 110 metres hurdles, which is still the British native record.

This may have been his best time for the event, but oddly enough it was not what Jack considers as being the greatest moment in his career. That moment was when he won the 110 metres hurdles during the Great Britain versus Russia meet in Moscow in 1955. "I enjoyed this race most because the Russians are so serious," he said. His time on this occasion was 14.4 seconds.

He came to the Colony at the end of 1956, but pressure of work (he has been working on the new Kai Tak runway), and family responsibilities have kept him off the track, most of the time.

No Time

He did train a couple of times but found he just didn't have the time to maintain his previous standard of hurdling. "High class athletes nowadays are training more and more and persons training in their leisure time are becoming rarer and rarer," he added.

He has done a little coaching while he has been here and it's a pity he couldn't find more time to do more, for I am sure lots of our athletes would have benefited by his vast experience.

However, it's a bit too late now for Jack, his wife and two daughters, who incidentally were both born here, are leaving the Colony tomorrow. But there is still hope, for he pointed out, "In many ways I would like to come back to Hongkong." Let's hope he does.

YANKEES SUFFER FIRST DEFEAT OF AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL SEASON

New York, April 16.

The Baltimore Orioles scored their first victory of the new American League season today by downing the New York Yankees, 7-4, at Baltimore on a bases-loaded triple by Billy Gardner in the eighth inning.

Gardner's first hit in four games climaxed a four-run rally. They tied the score at 4-all on a run-scoring pinch single by Gene Woodling.

It was the Yankees' first loss in four games. Art Ditmar, who was relieved by Byrne Duren in the eighth, was the losing pitcher. Billy O'Dell, the third of four Baltimore pitchers, gained the victory.

Arnold Palmer Leads In Houston Golf Classic

Houston, April 16. Arnold Palmer, a strong hitter whose drives missed only two greens today, crded a 6-under-par 66 today to lead the field in the first round of the Houston classic invitation golf tournament.

The long hitting expert from Ligonier, Pennsylvania, who won the 1958 Master's tournament and already is third among money winners this year, one-upped seven holes to head the field of 126 players in the $30,000 classic.

J. C. Goslee of Knoxville, Tennessee, hit a hole in one on the 185-yard 15th to bunch himself with six others behind Palmer with 97s.

Goslee, using his No. 3 iron, said the ace was his first in ten years. Goslee's five-under-par 67 bunched him with Bob Goetz of Tennessee, Jay Hebert of Florida, Peter Thompson of Australia, Cory Middlecott of Tennessee, Bill Camper Jr. of California and Jim Turney of New York.—U.P.I.

Willie Tasby and Bob Nieman homered for the Orioles and Elston Howard for New York. Pedro Ramos survived a three-run Boston rally in the ninth inning in pitching the Washington Senators to a 7-5 victory over the Red Sox at Boston.

Home Runs

Bob Allison and Norm Zaichin hit back-to-back homers for Washington in the fourth inning but the Nats scored their decisive runs in the eighth on a bases-loaded single by Reno Bertoia.

Herb Mofford, starting his first game for the Red Sox, was the loser. Home runs by Bob Cerv and Frank House, plus the five-hit pitching of Ned Garver, carried the Kansas City Athletics to a 6-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox at Chicago. Cerv and House both homered off loser Early Wynn, who gave up six runs and eight hits in 6-1/3 innings.

The Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers were idle.

National League

In the National League the Chicago Cubs buried the San Francisco Giants, 11-3, at San Francisco today with the aid of Dale Long's two-run homer and five errors by the losers.

Chicago turned the game into a rout by scoring seven runs on six hits in the ninth inning. Second baseman Daryl Spencer contributed three of the Giants' errors, including two on the same play in the ninth.

Glen Hobbie started for the Cubs and posted his first victory although Don Elston relieved him in the eighth. The loser was San Jones, who yielded Long's two-run homer. Jackie Brandt and Orlando Cepeda homered for the Giants. The Milwaukee Braves reeled off their fourth victory in a row by coming up with four runs in the eighth inning for a 7-3 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies at Milwaukee.

Second Victory

Lew Burdette limited the Phils to six hits in posting his second victory of the season.

Robin Roberts started for Philadelphia but was lifted in the sixth after the Braves went ahead, 3-2, on Eddie Mathews' homer. Pinch-hitter Dave Philley doubled home the tying run in the seventh but the Braves drove loser Jack Meyer from the box in the eighth with a four-run rally on three hits and four walks.

St. Louis was at Los Angeles in a night game. Pittsburgh and Cincinnati were "idle."

RECALLING the visit of the Duke of Edinburgh to Hongkong in 1869, Colonial in "Old Hongkong" reported that although the Duke arrived on October 31 and made a number of private visits ashore immediately after, his public official landing did not take place until November 2.

He stayed until November 16. At one of the functions he attended — a Ball in the City Hall — he sat on the right of the Chairman, Mr. W. Kewick, while the Governor sat on Mr. Kewick's left.

On the following evening His Royal Highness attended a performance by Chinese actors in the Tung-Hing theatre, Tsimshien.

Dr. G. McNeill Harrington has been appointed Health Officer for Schools.

Mr. L. R. Andrew has been appointed Deputy Registrar of the Supreme Court.

During the absence of Mr. J. T. Bagram, Mr. J. Hemmery Seth is to be in charge of the Consulate General of Siam.

Mr. Cyril Chumkin has been appointed Assistant Superintendent of the Police Reserve, and is to act as Deputy Superintendent.

Captain Henry Owen Hughes has been appointed Honorary ADC to the Officer Administering the Government.

RESIDENCES at Shek-O have during the last two nights been visited by a burglar who last night managed to get away with a sum of $15 from the house of the Hon. Sir William Shenton.

On Wednesday night the burglar paid visits to Sir William Shenton's and Mr. M. H. Turner's residences but took nothing.

Last night he returned to the former's house, gained entrance to Miss Shenton's room, seized a suitcase and turned out its contents, leaving everything behind excepting $15 in money.

Housebreaker Gets 5 Years

Stole $20,000 Worth Of Jewels, Silverware From 14 Houses In 5 Months

A 44-year-old man from Singapore, Ang Hock-sang, who in five months had carried out a systematic and planned series of burglaries and housebreaking in houses at the Peak and Upper Level, was sentenced to five years by Mr Justice C. W. Recco, Senior Puisne Judge, at the Criminal Sessions this morning.

The Crown Counsel told the Court that between August last year and January this year, Ang had broken into 14 houses and had stolen silverware, jewellery and currency amounting to some $20,000.

The victims in these theft cases included Mrs Beatrice Church, Professor Edmund Blunden, the Rev. Canon A. P. Rose, the Rev. George She, Mr A. O. Small, Mr R. Sleep, Dr Li Shu-fan, Mr W. R. Zinky, and several others.

In mitigation, Ang asked not to be sent to prison. He explained that if he were sent to prison, the other prisoners would be asking him to teach them "the art of stealing." He said he had no intention to pass on "this art of business." He asked instead to be sent out of the Colony.

Passing the sentence, Mr Justice Recco said the accused had set up what certainly must be regarded as one of the most systematic and successful series of burglaries and larcenies this Colony had ever witnessed.

"You have certainly accumulated a very large amount of property worth some $20,000. This is a large sum of money, by any reckoning, to acquire in five months. You have successfully got rid of most of that property."

Impossible

"You have requested me not to send you to prison and to send you out of the Colony. I have a duty to perform. You have successfully deprived several people of their properties and it is impossible for me to accede to your request."

Mr G. R. Sneath, Crown Counsel (who was assisted by Det. Insp. H. Dudman), told the Court this was not a case of a crude breaking into a house with muffers tied around one's neck and bringing weapons to frighten people. These burglaries represented the most successful and efficient offences over a period of months this Colony had known for a very long time.

In 1952 when the accused was in Singapore, he had acquired a name for thefts because he carried out a series of similar burglaries and housebreaking with the same method. As a result, he was convicted, sentenced to one year and was deported by the Singapore Government.

In 1957, he found his way to Hongkong. At that stage he did make a genuine attempt to earn his living by lawful means and in September, that year, he became a toy painter at a very meagre salary of $110 a month.

Business Fell

"He kept at that until August, 1958, some 11 months later, when that line of business fell off and he was dismissed," Mr Sneath said.

The accused then began his new career and had a successful run until January 19, this year, when he was arrested by two constables not in the commission of any offences, but walking in Des Voeux Road.

From the time he was arrested, he had fully admitted his offences and had done all he could to assist the Police to recover the property.

Not very much of the stolen property had been recovered, Mr Sneath said. The accused was as efficient in the disposal of the property as in its collection.

The accused had a wife and three children who are now in Singapore. He had no criminal record in Hongkong, Mr Sneath said.

The accused was sentenced on six charges to which he had pleaded guilty. A total of eight other counts of similar nature had been taken into consideration by the Court when passing the sentence.

MURDER TRIAL

administer the oath to one of them, when, without being asked, he told the court he wished to be discharged.

Questioned as to what his ground was, the man said it had to do with the matter of the death penalty.

"May I remind you that you are only concerned with returning a true verdict on the evidence. Any sentence that may be passed does not concern you at all."

"If, in spite of what I say, you still object you will be allowed to stand down, but you will not be released, which means that you will have to attend all the sittings of this court until the case is finished."

Asked if he still objected, the juror replied, "It is a question of conscience."

Sworn In

Said His Lordship, "Very well, then. You will stand down, but you will have to attend all the sittings of this court."

Another man was sworn in to take the vacant place.

Mr Desmond Mayne, Senior Crown Counsel, then outlined the prosecution case to the jury.

Just before doing so, he reminded them that they must try the four accused solely on the evidence that they hear in the court, and must put aside from their minds all what they may read in the newspapers.

Mr Mayne said the offence took place in the early hours of November 17, last year, during an attempt to escape from the training centre.

The evidence would be, he said, that the deceased was set upon by a group of men.

'Assisted'

The fourth accused was seen to beat the camp leader with belies, while the other three accused assisted the fourth.

Cause of death was fracture of the skull and injury to the brain.

All the accused were arrested not long after in Shaukiwan, said Mr Mayne.

Hearing is proceeding.

Urban Councillor Suggests: 'SPECIAL COMMITTEE SHOULD CONSIDER WIDER RENT CONTROL'

It was suggested today that Government appoint a special committee to consider controlling rents not at present subject to control.

Urban Councillor Hilton Cheong-leen, speaking at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Lion's Club in the Gloucester Hotel today, suggested that the committee determine "how rentals in new premises could become more stabilised, and how to defend tenants in the cheaper new flats from the threat of spiralling rent increases."

$2,000 Fine

A 32-year-old man, Lau Sam-yau, of 27 Sugar Street, first floor, was sentenced to two months' gaol and fined $2,000 with the alternative of three months in gaol by Mr Derek Cons at Central Magistracy this morning for possessing 693 lbs. of dutiable Chinese tobacco.

A second defendant, Lam Man-fung, 29, of 139 Queen's Road Central, first floor, who pleaded not guilty, was discharged when the Prosecution offered no evidence against him.

Mercantile Fund

Mr G. T. Tagg has been appointed a Member of the Mercantile Marine Assistance Fund Committee as from April 1, vice Mr B. T. Finagan, today's Government Gazette notified.

Struck Off

The name of The Chung Tai Shoe Factory and Co. Ltd. has been struck off the Company Register, according to the Government Gazette today.

Vice-Consul

Mr Woh Salch has been accorded formal recognition of Vice-Consul for Indonesia at Hongkong, the Government Gazette notified today.

Vague Manner

"Perhaps this fear on the part of the public is somewhat exaggerated. It may not be Government's intention to take any harsh decontrol measures. If such is the case, Government and the Legislative Council have only themselves to blame for being misunderstood and misinterpreted."

"The vague manner in which this controversial subject was debated at recent meetings of the Council has unnecessarily given rise to much speculative alarm on the part of the public," he said.

After mentioning his plan that Government set up a special committee to review the situation, Mr Cheong-leen said that the setting up of this committee would definitely be much more acceptable to the public than if Government should undertake to review the position itself.

If the committee were set up, he said, there should definitely be no decontrol for domestic premises with a standard rent of under $180 per month. "Government should confine its study to the desirability of any reasonable permitted increases in this category," he said.

May Deter

Turning to controls on new housing, the speaker said, "It has been disputed that any control on new housing, direct or indirect, would curb the flow of investment in building in Hongkong."

"The reply advanced is that perhaps it may deter the building speculators from plunging in, but the field would be left clear for the legitimate investors who want a reasonable return on their capital outlay."

"Also, could not Government recall from abroad some of its surplus funds to be loaned out to the Government of Hongkong to private enterprises for development?"

"Resolving such questions requires a careful sifting of facts and assessment of probabilities, which can best be done by the proposed special committee," he said.

Mr Cheong-leen said that many people were aware of the fact that there are in the Colony, well over 1,000 high-grade new flats that have been empty for many months or even years. He urged that Government implement the suggestion that full rates on all new premises be imposed six months after their completion, as soon as possible.

Business Premises

"The Special Committee on Housing which was appointed in early 1956, and which rendered its final report in 1958, calls for a 10-year programme of slum clearance and new building. This, in my opinion, is the most positive answer to our housing problem and to rent control."

"The Report has been in Government's hands for over six months, and I would urge Government not to take so long in arriving at a decision on the recommendations of the Report, because by the time a decision is taken, the Report will have become obsolete," he said.

"I cannot help feeling that the biggest worry of the community is with regard to the proposal that all business premises be decontrolled. If it is the view of the Honourable Members of the Legislative Council that all types of business premises, including shops, should be decontrolled, then I must emphatically and for very valid reasons disagree with them.

"There are tens of thousands of small shopkeepers working and living in controlled premises whose very livelihood would be jeopardised should their premises be decontrolled."

"There are also hundreds of private schools which would be forced to close down if their premises should be decontrolled. And we must not allow this to happen!"

Two Indians Charged

Two Indians, accused of possessing forged British passports, were remanded for three days in police custody by Mr Derek Cons at Central Magistracy this morning.

Defendants are Ivan George Mihai, 44, of Room 201 Capitol Hotel, Nathan Road, and Leonid Petrovich alias James Michael Webb, 46, of the same address.
